

The FTTP network should be sold to the ISPs via tariff as DSL is today. Please note that VOL (Verizon Online) is supposed to be treated in the same accordance as every other independent ISP. As such, if a Tampa ISP cannot gain access to the FTTP network, then neither can Verizon's Internet arm. Please be reminded that Verizon, as the citizens of Pennsylvania can clearly re-iterate, has gained numerous monies to introduce FTTP over the last 5-10 years, without ever having done so. Rewarding them now for this deception would be, actually, right in line with what the FCC has done during this Administration, but here in lies the hope that somehow the right thing will be done this time.
